

HOTSPOTS

There's a really "uncool" kid in your class. Even some of the nice kids in your class make fun of him. What do you do when you're with a group of friends and you pass him in the hall?

Someone picked up a copy of tomorrow's math test from the teacher's desk. Kids are passing it around at recess. A friend says, "C'mon—everybody's cheating on this test. If you don't, you'll flunk."

One of your good friends starts telling nasty jokes and swearing all the time. What do you do when she asks, "Why don't you ever laugh at my jokes?"

You walked to a nearby mall with a group of friends. You're supposed to be home by 6 o'clock, but your friends say, "Let's stay longer. Tell your mom you weren't wearing your watch and you didn't know what time it was."

You're at a sleep over with several friends. After the parents go to bed, you discover that your friends plan to watch an R-rated horror movie that you know your parents wouldn't want you to see.

Riding your bike home from baseball practice, you see two kids scratching the paint on a car. They warn you to keep quiet about it or they'll get you later.

You're building models in your friend's garage. He holds up a spray can and says, "I've heard that just a few whiffs of this stuff make you feel really cool. Let's try it. It can't be that bad if they sell it in the store."

It's the day before summer vacation. Several of your friends plan to cut class after lunch. They say, "You've gotta cut class too, or you'll ruin it for everybody. C'mon—don't be a nerd."